Did You Know...

- The skin is a living organ that requires a balanced environment to maintain its moisture and vitality, but in most climates, skin cannot maintain a necessary level of moisturisation on its own. In fact, it seems whatever climate you live in, your skin has to fight against wind, sun, pollution and even artificially controlled climates, which can ultimately mean battling dryness.
- Moisturisation is usually achieved through the regulation of water content and the secretion of natural oils. Historically, cosmetic scientists attempted to combat dryness by producing products that seal the skin with heavy oils and waxes. Although this method is still being practiced, studies indicate that it may be undesirable because it seals the skin from air and water. Since many skin care products are designed to prevent moisture from escaping the skin, by sealing it in a heavy compound, those skin care products may also prevent water from entering.
- The alternative for sealing the skin is to use compounds that enhance the skin's own ability to hold water. An example of this is hyaluronic acid, which helps to prevent excessive water loss by ensuring proper skin moisturisation levels from natural body moisture and from moisture introduced by the product. This should, of course, be combined with ingredients that help to regulate the moisture content and keep the skin soft.

Complementary Products

- Creamy Hydrating Masque - an oasis for dry skin. The rich formula features pinecone extract and saccharide isomerate to help reduce dryness and bind moisture to the skin.
- Tinted Moisturizer SPF 15 - provides SPF 15 and vital UVA/UVB protection, while enhancing natural skin tone with sheer colour.

- Perennial® - now your skin can benefit from the same protection that nature uses to guard tender flower bulbs through the harsh winter. This all-over body moisturiser helps your skin remain comfortably soft and healthy looking year round.
